

MCJA THE MIDCONTINENTAL JOURNAL OF ARCHAEOLOGY

The journal publishes original peer-reviewed papers on the archaeology of the region between the Appalachian Mountains and the Great Plains, from the Boreal Forests to the Gulf of Mexico, and on closely related subjects. Founded as the publication arm of the Midwest Archaeological Conference, the official MAC, Inc., journal has expanded to become the key publication outlet for the dissemination of archaeological research on the U.S. and Canadian midwest and on neighboring regions. Topics range from the Paleo-Indian period through the nineteenth century, addressing issues such as the cultural, ideological, technological and economic life of the inhabitants of this area, their relationship with the local environment, and the biological and other material manifestations of their presence. Theoretical discussions, technical analyses, temporal and regional syntheses, and preservation issues have all appeared in the pages of the journal along with reports of field research. Historical, ethnoarchaeological, linguistic, and ethnographic studies are also welcome. Periodic theme issues focus on topics of contemporary importance.
