

Supplemental Figure 1. Stuart Struever at Apple Creek excavation 1962–1963.

Supplemental Figure 2. Stuart and Alice Struever during Apple Creek excavations 1962–1963.

Supplemental Figure 3. Flotation composite. Top: Water separation in the Illinois River, with the Kampsville Ferry in the background. Bottom: Gail Houart Anderson with flotation baskets at the Koster site. Gail was the Koster site field director from 1973 to 1975.

Supplemental Figure 4. Views from within deep test units during 1969 Koster site test excavations.

Supplemental Figure 5. Struever lecturing to Koster site visitors during 1971. Teed Koster is in last row (on right) nearest the camera.

Supplemental Figure 6. Visitors viewing the Koster excavations during members' weekend 1975.

Supplemental Figure 7. Meeting of laboratory and project directors in Kampsville during the mid-1970s. Clockwise from lower left: Jane Buikstra (bandana), Stuart Struever, James Brown, Fred Hill, Carl Bebrich, Tim Wendt, David Asch, Rose Duffield, Tom Cook, and Manfred Jaehnig.

Supplemental Figure 8. Specialty laboratory directors. Clockwise from upper left: Fred Hill, faunal analysis; Sarah Anderson, faunal analysis; Nancy Asch, botanical analysis; Jim Brown, computer laboratory; and Manfred Jaehnig, malacology.

Supplemental Figure 9. Lewis Binford lecturing in St. Anselm's lecture hall.

Supplemental Figure 10. Kampsville flooding during 1973. Above: Aerial view of Kampsville from the east. Below: Archaeologists, including volunteers, sandbagging the Kampsville Museum (a.k.a. the Old Meatmarket).